Future Fund appoints new Head of ESG Risk Management

The Future Fund has appointed Joel Posters as its new Head of Environmental, Social and Governance Risk Management. Joel will relocate from The Netherlands to take up the role and is expected to start in August 2014.

Joel was until recently Global Head of Sustainability with De Lage Landen, part of Rabobank Group. He has held similar roles at ABN AMRO Bank, PricewaterhouseCoopers and AT Kearney, including experience across Europe, Asia and Australia.

David Neal, Chief Investment Officer, said:

“Integrating ESG Risk Management into our investment decision-making is an important part of our program. I am thrilled that Joel will be joining us and bringing his strong credentials and global perspective to the portfolio.

“Joel will work alongside the investment team to support our management of ESG risks and opportunities as well as continuing to oversee the exercise of our ownership rights and engagement with investee entities in conjunction with our external investment managers.”
